(Earlier Story on Page 22)

Peter Jaremko, 48, of 15 Kane St., formerly with the Central Intelligence Agency who was reported missing from Veterans Administration Hospital, Leeds, Saturday was found dead in Look Memorial Park Monday about 1 p. m. by an unidentified Florence man, according to police.

Dies of Exposure

Northampton Medical examiner Dr. Thomas F. Corridan said Mr. Jaremko apparently died of exposure.

He was born in Ludlow, Oct. 23, 1918, son of Mrs. Anna (Gryb) Jaremko of this city and the late Conrad Jaremko, and was graduated from Ludlow High School. Mr. Jaremko received a BS degree in electrical engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute in 1941, an MA in International Relations from School of Advanced International Studies, Washington, in 1947, and studied at Karlova University, Prague, Czechoslovakia in 1948 and American University, Washington, in 1949.

While in the U. S. Navy during World War II, he studied electronics and radar at Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Naval Air Technical Training Command at Texas. From 1945 to 1946 he attended the University of Colorado, naval language school, majoring in Russian.

From March through August, 1946, he was official interpreter at naval conferences for the Office of U. S. Navy Advisor, Military Government, Berlin. He was discharged from the navy in 1946 as a lieutenant.
